

Print Interview With Bloomberg's Jennifer Dlouhy (EPA beat) and Jennifer Jacobs (WH beat)
Topics: CPP, EPA Enforcement Issues, Pruitt's Priorities, Implementing Trump's Agenda
Wednesday, October 25, 2017 at 9:30 – 9:45 AM

MESSAGING OBJECTIVE FROM THIS INTERVIEW ...

-
-
-
-

Deliberative Process / Ex. 5

ABOUT JENNIFER DLOUHY & JENNIFER JACOBS ...

Jennifer Dlouhy is Bloomberg's beat reporter for the EPA. Jennifer Jacobs is Bloomberg's beat reporter for the White House. Jacobs previously spent the past 4 years in Iowa working at the Des Moines Register and leans Republican.

RECENT BLOOMBERG STORIES ...

Trump's EPA to Curb Legal Settlements With Environmentalists. "The Trump administration moved Monday to curb settlements with conservationists and industry, instead vowing to fight cases designed to force the Environmental Protection Agency to take action. ... 'It's very important that we do not engage in rulemaking through litigation,' Pruitt told reporters at a briefing Monday. 'As of today, with this directive and the memorandum, we're no longer going to be involved in that practice.'" (Bloomberg, 10/16/17)

Trump Tells EPA to Boost Biofuels After Iowa Uproar. "Trump directed EPA Administrator Scott Pruitt to back off any changes that would dilute a federal mandate for biofuel use, the people said. A top EPA official said Trump's urging was unnecessary because Pruitt wasn't planning on weakening the mandate." (Bloomberg, 10/18/17)

EPA Asks Drillers and Miners for Advice on Regulating Them. "President Donald Trump's Environmental Protection Agency is asking miners, oil drillers and manufacturers to collaborate with the government on how best to regulate their industries. The EPA began its new "Smart Sectors" program with an inaugural meeting between agency staff and representatives of its regulated industries on Tuesday and a promise to work together to 'develop sensible approaches that better protect the environment and public health.'" (Bloomberg, 10/03/17)